

My wife and I live in the metro Indianapolis area and have been enjoying DTV for nearly two years.

We bought our first HDTV ready set in October 2002 and an HDTV tuner for it in May 2003. All of our digital programming was available OTA from our local stations.

Last summer we bought our second HDTV which has an integrated ATSC tuner and is DCR (digital cable ready). Our local cable company is Comcast and it carries all of the local DTV signals via digital cable plus we can also receive them OTA.

In our opinion, it would be a disservice to our community and our nation to delay the date of the DTV transition deadline beyond December 31, 2006.

This deadline has been in place for a long time and people need to get with the program.

We have several analog sets that will be put out to pasture, but the future is digital TV and we will gladly replace them with new digital sets when the time comes.

Sincerely yours,
